INTRODUCTORY

IN PRESENTING this, the 5th revised annual edition of R. L. Polk & Co's Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou Directory, the publishers take occasion to thank all those subscribers who have, by liberal support, made it possible to compile and issue so exhaustive a work.

Some idea of the growth of the three cities, as illustrated by this edition, may be gathered from the fact that the present work contains 821 pages—an increase of 80 pages over the last directory issued. The number of individual names in this volume is 20,262 (names of corporations and firms, death and removal notices are not counted).

By using the very conservative multiple of 2½ we estimate the present population of Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou and their suburbs to be 50,655—an increase of 2,225.

Now just a word about these three unique cities and a reason or two for their future development.

Their principal assets are climate and scenery. Nestled within the figurative shadow of the nation's great monument—Pike's Peak—are these three communities which have attracted the attention and admiration of the traveler, the home-seeker, and the invalid. Their inhabitants are essentially cosmopolitan, for they come from the cultured classes of the United States and Europe.

Nature, to the Pike's Peak region, has been lavish with her choice possessions of pure air and mountain spring water, life-giving sunshine and diversified scenery of unsurpassed grandeur. Man has taken advantage of these gifts by building in their midst cities with wide avenues, schools, churches and modern trolley systems. Cool nights in summer, sunny days in winter, drives and trails, parks, porous soil, absence of mud and slush, make this section a veritable Mecca.

No spot in the West has been so thoroughly advertised as a health and pleasure resort and no section commends itself more strongly to the average man of family. Further, many men of wealth retiring from active business, who heretofore resided in the East, are selecting the Pike's Peak region as a residential point.

The development of the three cities has been steady and healthful in the past, and this same condition is bound to prevail in the future.
