

Laugh Out Loud!

All titles can be found by author in
J fiction unless otherwise indicated.

Blume, Judy

Superfudge

Peter's little brother, Farley Drexel Hatcher, also known as Fudge is a great big pain. Now there's another baby on the way and if he's like Fudge, Peter's not sure how he'll survive. (Fudge series)

Horvath, Polly

The Pepins and Their Problems

The Pepins are totally clueless. They can't figure out how to solve any of their problems from getting toads out of their shoes to figuring out how to make their cow give milk not lemonade. Luckily the author enlists readers who come up with some outlandish answers on their own. This book will make you feel very smart!

Howe, James

It Came From Beneath the Bed

Uncle Harold is the dog-author of Bunnacula and nephew, Howie would like to follow In Harold's paw prints. Can Howie succeed with a story about a stuffed koala that grows to a monstrous size after swallowing some science-project potion? And will Howie ever listen to Uncle Harold's advice?
(Tales From the House of Bunnacula)

Klise, Kate

Regarding the Fountain; a Tale in Letters of Liars and Leaks

When the fifth grade starts a project to get a new water fountain, they find someone with much grander plans. How about exotic birds, an ice skating rink, geysers and chocolate milk dispensers? Letters, memos, newspaper clippings lead the kids to uncover crime and corruption as well as get a very special fountain for the middle school. (Regarding the... series)

Levy, Elizabeth

My Life as a 5th Grade Comedian

Bobby's a funny guy but his principal thinks it's no laughing matter that he's always disrupting class. Bobby's on the brink of being expelled when his teacher recruits him to organize a school-wide comedy show. Maybe Bobby's dad will learn the difference between a joke that's funny and a joke that hurts.

Peck, Richard

Soup

Rob's best friend, Soup, is a regular genius - at least when it comes to getting them in trouble. After all, who else would teach you how far apples can be whipped off of a tree, and how that same tree can be a perfect spot for tying your aunt in a lightning storm? (Soup series)

Pennypacker, Sara

Clementine

Clementine can't help it if her head is full of "spectacularful" ideas. She was just trying to help Margaret when she glued Margaret's hair back. After all, it wasn't like Clementine had cut it off - at least the first time. (Clementine series)

Rockwell, Thomas

How to Eat Fried Worms

Could you eat a worm or 15 worms in 15 days? If your stomach can handle it, you'll have a great, gross time keeping up with the antics of the two sides of this bet in their battle of wit and will.

Trine, Greg

The Curse of the Bologna Sandwich

Melvin graduates at the top of his class in SuperHero school but that doesn't mean it's easy. What if you could see everyone's underwear? Yuck! And will the McNasty brothers discover his weakness - Bologna! (Melvin Beederman, SuperHero series)

Wardlaw, Lee

101 Ways to Bug Your Parents

Sneeze wants to be an inventor. His parents want him to work on his writing so they send him to a summer class. While the other kids write their books, Sneeze comes up with "101 Ways to Bug Your Parents" which just might be the bestseller of the bunch.

More Authors and Series

Thrilling Tales by M.T. Anderson
Hank the Cow Dog by John Erickson
Pippi Longstocking by Astrid Lindgren
Mrs. Piggle Wiggle by Betty MacDonald
Skinnybones by Barbara Park
Hoboken Chicken by Daniel Pinkwater
Wayside School by Louis Sachar
Time Warp Trio by Jon Scieszka